FORMER GRENADIAN WRITES FROM WEST

H. W. Latimer in Personal Letter to Relative Tells of Greatness of California. State that has Something to Sell all the Time.

The following letter from Mr. H. W. Latimer, 276 O'Farrell Street San Pedro, Calif., and addressed to Mr. C. E. Lockett of Grenada has been handed The Sentinel Editor. Mr. Latimer has many friends in Grenada who are always interested in him and his excellent wife, all of whom will no doubt read what he says with interest. Furthermore, the letter furnishes food for thought in that what he states of California and its wealth and roads and other things shows the result when people have something to sell, and something that others must buy, all the time. Mr. Latimer's letter is dated May 1, 1923:

Your letter of some date back materialized on schedule time, remarks therein read and absorbed.

Enclosing I am sending you a notice of amount of building permits issued for month of April for this town, and those in position to know, say the present month will near reach the two million mark. I am of opinion it will. Some days I do not go up in the business sections for several days, and when I do I always see from 2 to 6 new buildings have been started, and there would be many more started if labor could be had. Carpenters are getting from $10 to $15 per day of 8 hours and common labor from $5 to $8 and the contractors are calling for help.

This building rush is not alone confined to this section, it is everywhere in this state and in Los Angeles it is difficult to get along the streets as on all sides small buildings are being torn down and 10 to 20 story ones erected. The town is growing at the rate of a thousand people per day and by 1930 it will reach up in the 2 or 3 million class.

San Pedro is Los Angeles, that is, San Pedro is incorporated in city limits of Los Angeles and are 23 miles apart but you would not realize it unless you noticed register on your car, as all the way you are passing nice residences and thousands of stores. All the way is a broad 80 foot paved road and all the roads coming into the big one are paved. There are 2 boulevards one called Main Boulevard, the other Pacific Boulevard. Main comes into San Pedro on east or harbor side and skirts the harbor. Pacific comes in on the west side and widens to 125 feet at edge of San Pedro. This boulevard leaves open country, or I should say level country, about 3 miles north of San Pedro, thence along edge of foot hills on right and Pacific ocean on left, or which was once the ocean.

REVIVAL CREATING UNUSUAL INTEREST

Meeting at Presbyterian Church Drawing Large Crowds. Some Splendid Sermons.

The revival services at the Presbyterian church conducted by Rev. Trigg A. M. Thomas are bringing out large congregations and are creating unusual interest.

Mr. Thomas is intensely original. He is unique in his methods. He hits where one would least expect, but at all times, he makes it manifest that he is trying to get men and women the path they are traveling in the hope that they will seek the fellowship of God.

His theme Monday night was, "Is there a hell?" He takes the position that there is a literal hell just as there is a literal heaven. He has but little patience with an idea furthered in many quarters that a burning hell is "figurative." The minister seems to think that God meant what he said and that the inspired writers knew what they were recording when they wrote about a lake of fire and brimstone.

He furthered the idea that if there is a place of reward for following God's commandments and walking in His Holy Ways, that likewise there is a punishment for a failure to do these things. He takes the position that God has made the way plain; that He tried so hard to make it plain that He gave His only begotten Son for that purpose, and that it is so plain that the wayfarer can read his own life and which way he is doing.

Tuesday morning he discussed heaven, that beautiful City whose streets are paved with gold, and where beauty, joy, love, patience, virtue, honor, honesty, grace, happiness and contentment hold sway—the place where there is no sickness or sorrow or death, the place where there is no night. He lifted the minds of hearers from mundane things and planted them at least for a little while on that City whose maker and builder is God—the place where the Savior said, "I go to prepare a place for you" and "in my father's house are many mansions, if it were not so I would have told you." The minister made his hearers think of the loved ones who had gone on before; he made them think that these loved ones, these mothers and fathers, sons and daughters, were now standing on the parapets of that beautiful City beckoning them to come Home. A sublime thought, a Holy inspiration. God sends his angels to encamp around about those He loves, and it is a consoling thought to believe that our loved ones who have gone on before are pleading at the Seat of Mercy for those of us behind.

Mr. Thomas' subject Tuesday night was, "Plain talk on forbidden subjects." In this he took a wide sweep at much which is looked on with tolerance today. He discussed the dance and from his viewpoint pointed out its evil effects on the human mind and on the human heart. He talked about men and women bathing together! he talked about joy riding and card playing and left no doubt on the minds of his hearers that he sincerely and honestly believes that all these things are having a deleterious effect upon the minds of the young people and that they are undermining the pillars of the home and society and sapping the real life, the church.

For the first time since the revival started more than a week ago, Dr. Thomas, the evangelist, gave the invitation on Wednesday night and about 300 people went forward and shook hands with him and the other ministers present, and recorded their decisions for Christ and the church and a better life. Some were decisions accepting Christ as their Savior, others were decisions to move church letters to Grenada, but the majority were local church members who decided to live more for Christ and the church.

The invitation will be given at all remaining services of the revival and it is expected that many more will respond to the appeal of the gospel of Christ as it is being so plainly and powerfully preached by Dr. Thomas, to unusually large and appreciative crowds.

The meeting will close next Sunday with the night service.

CRITICISED FOR DINING WITH BREWER AND HARRISON.

The Weekly Weekly Sees Nightmares Because Conner and Ex-Gov. Brewer and Senator Harrison Eat Supper Together. Conner Pleads "Guilty" to That and Being Introduced by Hubert Stephens. Retorts About Russell and His "Crown Prince." Editorial Note.

JACKSON, MISS., May 5.—On his return to his headquarters here this afternoon from a week of campaigning South Mississippi, speaker Conner was asked about an editorial statement in Vardaman's Weekly of Thursday charging and criticising Mr. Conner with dining in company with United States Senator Harrison and Ex-Governor Earl Brewer.

"Yes sir," replied Mr. Conner, "I am guilty." "Were you introduced at New Albany by Senator Stephens," he was further asked. "Guilty again," answered Mr. Conner. "Of course, in the opinion of the Weekly, which, as I am informed, is now owned and controlled by Russell and Franklin, these are abundant reasons why I should not be elected. Mississippi politics has reached a low ebb, when a former governor, a United States Senator and the speaker of the House cannot dine together in a public cafe without being charged by designing political henchmen with a sinister motive. During the last few years I have hung my head in shame when distinguished Americans visited our state and no official recognition could be given them by the governor. When the people of Mississippi put me in the governor's mansion, I am going to entertain our United States senators at my own table," continued Mr. Conner, "and the mansion will be open at all times to the citizens of Mississippi."

"In speaking of dinner parties," said Mr. Conner with a smile, "you probably saw Lee Russell and the Crown Prince with their heads together in a Jackson cafe last Sunday night. Of course, this was their perfect right, and no one has criticised them for it, but I cannot concede that the royalty alone have the right to select their associates. This is another sample of the same old peanut politics and blind factionalism which have cursed Mississippi."

The following in Vardaman's Weekly (and by the way, there is no name at the masthead of the Weekly as Editor—the space where the name of the Editor should appear seems to be vacant, but there are many vacant things about the Weekly) of May 3, is what Mr. Conner was asked about and is what his remarks above quoted refers to:

"Hon. Pat Harrison spent a few hours in Jackson recently and while here conferred with a select circle of antis. He was also in conference with the Hon. Earl Brewer and Sennett. 'Mike' (Martin) Conner, the baby candidate for Governor of the great State of Mississippi."

RELIEVES SUPERVISORS OF CONTEMPT CHARGES

Judge J. G. McGowen Issues Opinion Which Relieves Boards of Supervisors for Failure to Impose Tax Levy for Defunct Drainage District.

The following communication from Judge J. G. McGowen speaks for itself. It relieves the boards of supervisors which failed to make a tax levy to cover the expense of the defunct Yocoma-Tallahatchie Drainage district from contempt charges.

It is a safe guess to state that Judge McGowen was glad to find a warrant for doing just what he has done in regard to the action of boards of supervisors. One would be safe in betting that Judge McGowen never wanted to fine the supervisors of any County, but the drainage law is so fixed that the chancery judge has but little discretion in the matter:

Messrs. Gwinn & Moulter, Greenwood, Miss.
Hon. A. W. Shands, Cleveland, Miss.
Hon. W. M. Mitchell, Grenada, Miss.
Messrs. Weinstein & Denman, Charleston, Miss.
Hon. Lomax B. Lamb, Marks, Miss.

"Since Pat's departure the news has been given out that 'Pat' is going to support 'Mike' and 'Pat' have always stood pretty close. The names are synonymous."

"Pat Harrison came to Mississippi to look over the political situation. He has been making speeches, but of course there was no politics in his mission. Incidentally he is observed at the dinner table with Earl Brewer and Sennett Conner. Don't look very much like politics, does it?"

Note by the Editor: Everybody knows, who knows anything at all, that Pat Harrison spent quite a deal of time in Jackson on his recent visit home; that he was in and out of the Capital City making his visits back and forth to different points in the State frequently; that he not only "spent a few hours in Jackson" but that he spent many hours there. Everybody knows, who knows anything at all, that the Senator's family spends the time with him in Washington as they ought to do; he no doubt has a house rented there and it is expensive to make the trip back and forth for four or five. The Senator's children are no doubt in school in Washington, and it is indeed come to a pretty pass when a man cannot come home and visit those who gave him his commission without having his motives questioned and the accusing finger of the politician pointed at him.

But Pat's very presence frightens some people. There is something in the Good Book about the guilty fleeing when there is no one pursuing.

If the "news has been out that Pat is going to support Mike" Conner, we have not heard of it, and we confess that we believe we would have at least heard some faint whisper of it. But knowing Senator Harrison's ability and his good judgment and sound common sense, if we were to guess, we would guess that he favors Conner.

Pat has a right to support whomsoever he pleases. There is one thing that is dead certain he IS NOT GOING TO SUPPORT the candidate Lee Russell is backing. Earl Brewer and Pat Harrison make that bunch tremble in their boots. The very mention of the names of these two men make the cold chills run down the backs of the Weekly's bunch.

The Weekly's attention is respectfully pointed to Bilbo. He will give the Weekly and its candidate about all they can do between now and the primaries.

BIG CLUB RALLY HELD HERE LAST SATURDAY

Club Boys and Girls of Grenada County Gathered in Grenada for Big Day. Dinner, Picture Show, Instructive Talks and Hen Sale Features.

The club rally for the club girls and boys of Grenada County was held at the court house May 5. This rally was under the direction of the County Agents, assisted by Miss Beuna Ware Freeman, Canning Specialist of the Agricultural College. Mr. M. McKibben, and Mr. W. F. Martin, known over the county as the friend of the club members.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather conditions the attendance was unusually good, there being about 65 active members present. There were also present many parents and friends of these club members.

The morning session was taken up with roll call, and addresses by Miss Freeman, Mr. Martin and Mr. McKibben, interspersed with club songs and yells. Miss Freeman gave a very interesting discussion of club work, stressing especially the importance of putting real life into the work. She also went into some detail as to the work outlined for the girls. Mr. Martin gave the club members a hearty welcome and assured them of his interest in their work and of his will-

CONNER'S RECORD ON WAR CLEAR

Candidate for Governor Answers Critic in Convincing Statement. Citing His Record.

Hazlehurst, Miss., May 8.—Taking from his pocket a copy of the Hazlehurst Courier, Sennett Conner, candidate for Governor, in his speech tonight read an article therefrom which contained the statement:

"They say Conner was a slacker."

"I have waited purposely," said Mr. Conner, "until I came to Hazlehurst so that I might answer this charge in the presence of the editor and readers of this paper. I am going to give you the true record tonight just as I have done everywhere in this campaign. I wish that everybody in the State was within the sound of my voice so that those who want the truth could have it direct."

"I have no military record. A year before it was dreamed America would go into the World War I was elected Speaker of the Mississippi House of Representatives for the term which extended throughout the time our country was engaged in the War. The draft act of May 18th, 1917, chapter 15, paragraph 4, declared that—

"The Vice-President of the United States, the officers—legislative, executive and judicial of the United States and of the several states, territories, and the District of Columbia shall be exempt from the selective draft herein prescribed."

"The reason for such provision is self-evident. The machinery of government, Federal and state had to function, and function efficiently if our gigantic war effort was to succeed."

"However, in June 1917, before a single division was in France, I volunteered unconditionally for military service in any capacity to which I might be assigned, to the Adjutant General of our state, who was then recruiting units for war service. My enlistment was rejected." Whereupon Mr. Conner read from the signed statement of General Eric C. Scales, Adjutant General of Mississippi, both during the war and at the present time, as follows:

"In view of the policy of the government, as evidenced by the Draft Act, which exempted state officers from military service, and the urgent appeal from President Wilson not to disrupt state, county and town governmental organizations by accepting for military service men so engaged, we decided that, in view of the fact that you occupied the most important position in the legislative department of our state government, that it would be unwise to accept your enlistment."

After inviting every Doubting Thomas to come forward and inspect the document from which he had read Mr. Conner continued:

"I accepted the classification to which I was assigned, and gave my time without limit to every effort tending toward the success of the war but what I did at home was nothing as compared with the sacrifices made by the men in the army and navy. I lift my hat to them. I cannot agree, however, that all men who could have gone to war and did not volunteer are now unworthy of holding public office, for this would include the thousands who awaited their turn under the draft, as the Government asked them to do, and it would include other thousands who were

VOTER QUALIFICATIONS AND PARTY MACHINERY

Executive Committee Will Probably Follow Former Rulings. Constitution Imposes Poll Tax—Does Not Have to be "Assessed."

People are discussing who has the right to vote and some of the qualifications to vote in the Democratic primaries. This is always true as an election approaches.

It is generally known that the State Democratic Executive Committee has the authority and the power to prescribe the qualifications of those who vote in the primaries. The Executive Committee is the Supreme Court of the party machinery. Questions growing out of disputes over results declared in primary elections have been repeatedly carried to the courts and in every instance the courts have held that the question was a party matter and not a judicial one.

It is therefore surmised that the State Committee will be more than apt to follow the rulings heretofore made by attorneys general rather than that of the present attorney general in regard to the payment of poll taxes. The Constitution of the State, Section 243, reads "A uniform poll tax of $2, to be used in aid of the common schools and for no other purpose, is hereby imposed on every male inhabitant of this State between the ages of 21 and 60 years." Hence the view that a poll tax is due and does not have to be "Assessed" as other taxes. The courts have held that since the suffrage amendment, the same law as to taxes applies to women as to men.

The man or woman who has paid all taxes required by law, for the year 1922 on or before the first day of February 1923, and all taxes for the year 1921, and who has resided in the Election District in which he or she offers to vote for a period of twelve months prior to Nov. 5, 1923 (that is the day of the general election) is a qualified voter, in the general acceptance of the term. Ministers of the gospel in actual charge of a church become qualified voters after having resided in an Election District 6 months. It is generally understood that it was the purpose of the framers of the Constitution to abridge the suffrage rights of the moving citizen, and that body had in mind the idea that the man who stays in one community, or who owns a home, is better prepared to say who shall hold office and to exercise the right to vote than the man or woman who has just "lit" in that community.

It seems to be generally agreed that the statute requiring candidates to give official notice to Executive Committees on or before the first day of May is a nullity, and it is thought that it will not be regarded by either the State or County Executive Committees.

Weak Back

Mrs. Mildred Pipkin, of R. F. D. 8, Columbia, Tenn., says: "My experience with Cardui has covered a number of years. Nineteen years ago... I got down with weak back. I was run-down and so weak and nervous I had to stay in bed. I read of and sent for it. I took only one bottle at that time, and it helped me; seemed to strengthen and build me right up. So that is how I first knew of Cardui. After that, when I began to get weak and 'no account', I sent right for Cardui, and it never failed to help me."

LESSON FOR MAY 13

DAVID, THE POET-KING

LESSON TEXT—1 Sam. 16:1-3.
GOLDEN TEXT—Surely, goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life.—Ps. 23:6.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Ps. 51, Isa. 40:1-3; Jer. 33:15-26; Luke 1:32; Acts 22:29-34.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Shepherd Boy Chosen King.
JUNIOR TOPIC—God Calls a Boy to Be King.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—David, as a Friend.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Lessons From the Life of David.

I. Samuel Mourns for Saul (v. 1).
1. Why He Mourned. The death of Saul was no doubt a personal loss to Samuel, for Saul was a commanding and lovable personality. Then, too, the ruin of so promising a career would deeply affect a soul like Samuel. Finally the humiliation to God and God's people grieved his heart.

2. Excessive Mourning Rebuked. The fact that God had rejected Saul should have lifted Samuel out of his grief. Excessive grief over that which God does is a reflection upon Him and should be rebuked. In all God's acts we should submit although it may change our plans. When sorrow becomes a hindrance to the discharge of duty, it merits rebuke.

II. Samuel Sent to Anoint David (vv. 1-3).

1. Samuel's Fear (v. 2). Perhaps by this time Saul was becoming a desperate character. Samuel knew that if Saul should hear that he was taking steps to anoint a successor to his throne, his own life would be in danger. Samuel was wise in submitting this difficult situation to the Lord. God's servants are to be brave. But even when going on errands for God we should not court danger. We should exercise the greatest caution so that unnecessary dangers be avoided.

2. The Lord's Direction (vv. 2, 3). The Lord smoothed the way for Samuel. He showed him how to perform his duty and escape the danger. Samuel was to take a heifer and announce that he was going to offer a sacrifice unto the Lord and to call Jesse to the sacrifice. The prophet was not told all that would happen. This is usually God's way with us. He gives us our work piece by piece and guides us step by step. Samuel's purpose was known only to him. It was to be kept a secret so that the news would not reach Saul. This was a shrewd device but entirely legitimate. There is not necessity for us to reveal all our purposes.

III. Samuel's Obedience (vv. 4-13).

1. The Trembling Elders of Bethlehem (vv. 4, 5). It seems that the whole nation was shot through with fear because of Saul's sin. To the elders' alarming inquiry Samuel responded with the assurance of peace, inviting them to join him in worshipping the Lord.

2. Examination of Jesse's Sons (vv. 6-12). The Lord had revealed to Samuel that one of Jesse's sons was to be the new king, but not the particular one. The selection of the right one was a most important matter as destinies hung upon it. (1) Eliab rejected (vv. 6, 7). Eliab was the eldest son and therefore he was the first presented as having first right to the place of honor. Further, he was a splendid specimen of a man, tall and majestic in appearance so that even Samuel was captivated by him as he had been by Saul. (10:24). Outward appearance was favorable but the realities seen by God were against him. God knows whom He can trust with great responsibilities. We frequently estimate men by their dress, culture, wealth and position. These are only surface manifestations and frequently lead us astray, but God looks into the heart. (2) David chosen (vv. 8-12). "All but one of Jesse's sons had been looked upon but still the Lord's choice had not appeared. Jesse's reply to Samuel's question as to whether all his children had appeared seems to imply that David was not of much importance. He was considered good enough to watch the sheep but not important enough to be called to the feast. Because David was faithful as a shepherd boy, he was in line for promotion when God's given time arrived."

3. David Anointed (v. 13). When the shepherd lad appeared, the Lord directed Samuel to anoint him. When the oil was applied the Spirit of the Lord came upon him. David was a gifted and attractive lad but this was of no avail without the Spirit of God. Power must come from God. Only as we are anointed by the Holy Ghost can we truly do the Lord's will and work.

Knowing When.
Next to knowing when to seize an opportunity, the most important thing in life is to know when to forego an advantage.—Disraeli.

Indulgence.
It is only necessary to grow old to become more indulgent. I see no fault committed that I have not committed myself.—Goethe.

Our Life.
We pass our life in deliberation, and we die upon it.—Quinesel.

GOLF CLUB OPENS

The recently organized Grenada Golf Club will open its golf course on or about Saturday May 12th. This sporty little course is conveniently located just about a mile south of town on the Jefferson Davis Highway and will afford its members an excellent opportunity to indulge in the popular pastime that is sweeping this entire country.

Mr. George E. Ensminger, the Mississippi State Open Golf Champion, has been engaged and is already on the grounds supervising the details preliminary to opening the course. Mr. Ensminger has planned, constructed and formerly opened practically all the golf courses in Mississippi and will be on hand daily to give instruction in golf to the members here.

He will also have on hand a complete line of golf accessories including golf clubs, bags, balls, etc. He will be here just for a limited length of time so those who expect to avail themselves of his services, should lose no time in making it known.

MEANEST MAN IN GRENADA

Who is he? What does he do? Why is he the meanest man? Why should he be exposed at this particular time? Trigg A. M. Thomas the famous and fearless western Evangelist will tell you at the Great Mass-Meeting for men and boys only, in the Presbyterian church next Sunday May 13th promptly at 3 p. m. "OVER THE HILL"

"Over The Hill," which was shown at Grenada Opera House Tuesday and Wednesday of this week was a picture far above the ordinary and is one worthy of the highest commendation. The story is taken from the well-known poem, "Over The Hill to the Poorhouse," and is a powerful sermon to old and young folks alike. The cast was an excellent one and the acting throughout was superb.

The management is to be congratulated for bringing such a picture to the town.

STATE PLANT BOARD OF MISSISSIPPI A. & M. COLLEGE MISS

A. & M. College, Miss May 5.—Specimens of an insect damaging tomato plants in the field have recently been received by the State Plant Board from several localities in Mississippi and determined as the imbricated snout beetle. This is a grayish-brown snout beetle about 5/8 of an inch long, and is a common pest on a great many garden and truck crops.

The Board advises that spraying or dusting tomatoes with lead arsenate will control this pest and also protect the plants from flea beetles, cutworms, and other insects. Or a pound of lead arsenate may be added to 50 gallons of Bordeaux Mixture, and this combination spray will control tomato blight, leaf spot, and other diseases as well as the insects, though it will have no effect on tomato wilt.

NEW APPOINTMENT

Well, The Woman Voter smoked the Governor out, so that he finally appointed a Superintendent of the State Penitentiary. We hope the next Governor of Mississippi will see that all offices and vacancies are filled without being forced into making appointments by the women of the State.

Let us at least hope that the men will see to it that the new Superintendent is put under bond.—Woman Voter.

MUSIC AND WHAT IT MEANS

Resume of Speech Made by Anne Faulkner Oberndorfer, National Music Chairman, General Federation of Women's Clubs, Before the State Federation at Grenada.

At no time in the history of the world has any nation faced such an opportunity for the development of a National art as that which lies before America today. From every great war in the past some one nation has arisen supreme in political and commercial importance. Then begins the development of its arts, and, if we review the pages of musical history, we will find that the greatest growth in music always follows some great war. Today we face the same situation in America.

We Americans have had the wrong attitude regarding music for so many years that it is difficult for us to grasp quickly the full realization of its power. As a nation we have treated music as a thing apart from, instead of a part of, our daily life. It is not so many years ago that the average American business man was all but ashamed to acknowledge a love for music. Now a change has come. Music has become a force and not an adjunct in the life of every American citizen. The pre-war status of music in America will never return.

Confucius once said: "If you would know if a country is well governed and of good morals, listen to its music." The folk music of any land is its most important musical asset, yet it has only been recently that we in America have come to realize the wealth of our own folk material. We are just beginning to recognize the marvelous strength of our Indian music, just as we are at last discovering the true worth of the Indian legends. In the native songs of the American Negro are to be found the most interesting and unique expression ever contributed to literature and music by a primitive folk.

The General Federation of Women's Clubs has pledged its support to all good American music. What are we to do about it? First, we must familiarize ourselves with the music that is being used in our homes, our clubs, our schools, our churches, Sunday Schools, theatres, Moving Picture houses; and the music that is being advertised in our shops, magazines and newspapers. We will be surprised; we may even be horrified with what we will find, but it is time that we knew. When you consider the titles, the pictures on the covers, one does not need to look at the words themselves to know that the song is vile. "Jazz" music in its original form was used as the accompaniment to the Voodoo ceremonies by which the uneducated, almost barbaric Negro, aroused all his vilest and most sensuous nature. Is it any wonder that the largest industries, which started Community Songs for employees during war times, have been forced to forbid the singing of "Jazz" in their factories?

When we know what the evil music is and where it is, then we must search for a substitute. And the best substitute will be of no value, unless we make our music a vital part of our every day life in America, from our own homes out to every part of our community.

Let us start a daily music hour in our homes, when we sing the good, old folk songs of America, which our Americanization work has taught us really are the folk songs of the whole world. Let us encourage our children to play good music for us in our homes. Let us use our phonographs and player-pianos as a force for good amusement and education in our home circle.

An ideal plan for community cooperation in furthering a knowledge of good music in your community is the Music Memory Contest. This should be started in every community of America by the Women's Clubs.

Briefly, the plan is to enlist the support of the clubs, Board of Education, Superintendent of Schools, Supervisor of Music, newspapers, and Music Dealers. A list of fifty good instrumental compositions is made. These selections should be available on records, player-piano rolls, and in simple piano sheet music, which the children can play themselves. The newspapers should publish the lists, and possibly a short analysis of each number. At the end of six weeks, or two months, these fifty good compositions will be known to every child and in every home in your community. Then the contests should be held, with preliminary contests in each school. Eight or ten of the compositions should be played, without programs, the children writing down the name of the composition, composer, and possibly when and where he lived, and the meaning of the selection. The twenty-five best papers should constitute the school team, and then the final contest of teams should be held in a big hall, under the auspices of the community musical interests, which the Women's Clubs have gathered together.

In the days of ancient Greece, there were but two topics on the youth's curriculum, Music and Athletics. Possibly if we should put music, by means of the Music Memory Contest, on the same basis as athletics, we should have more interest in good music today.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

The people are hungry for nourishment for their souls. The upward struggle of democracy aims at the spiritual no less than at the material. The lives of the vast majority are cast upon a background of sameness and grind and routine. Necessarily so. The world's work has got to be done. But all the more should we endeavor to open up, to make readily accessible and to cultivate those pastures where beauty and inspiration may be gathered by all. I believe that some of the restlessness, of the turmoil, of the lawlessness, even of the crime, of the day, arises in a measure from a reaction against the humdrum-ness and drabness and lack of inspirational opportunity of everyday existence. I believe that much can be done by art, and particularly the art of music, to give satisfaction to the natural and legitimate desire for getting away from unrelieved dullness and drudgery, and to lead the strong impulse underlying it into fruitful, instead of into harmful, or even destructive, channels.

"Where they sing, you may safely dwell."

There is no song in the wicked."

—Otto H. Kahn, in "Music and the Democracy."

MISSISSIPPI STATE AND CLASS RECORDS FALL.

The Mississippi state, as well as the mature class records, have fallen.

Eminent's Osie L. 387181, owned by Mississippi A. & M. College, by producing 13,070 pounds of milk and 634.42 pounds of butter-fat, is the new champion. She started her record at 3 years 9 months of age and was on test for 365 days. Although displaced in the junior four year old class, Osie L. has come back stronger than ever.

Of particular note is the fact that six of the twelve months on test, Osie produced in excess of fifty pounds of butter-fat producing as high as 68.5 pounds of butter-fat during January.

Osie is a daughter of Roycroft Eminent 103231 and was out of Osie L. 218193.

By producing 11,573 pounds of milk and 560.36 pounds of butter-fat, in one year at 4 years 2 months of age, Ellis Electra 426873, owned by Mississippi A. & M. College, becomes the champion junior four year old of Mississippi. She supersedes Eminent's Osie L. 387181, her half sister, which held the record with 257.67 pounds of butter-fat.

Electra calved within sixteen months of last freshening prior to test, qualifying for class AA. She carried calf 215 days during test.

In one month of her test, Ellis produced as high as 1255 pounds of milk and 64.01 pounds of butter-fat and in another month produced 1349 pounds of milk and 58.82 pounds of butter-fat.

The new champion was sired by Roycroft Eminent 103231, with sixteen Register of Merit daughters; and was out of Eminent's Electra 350701.

PERRY-CATOE

Two of Mississippi's prominent families were united last week when Miss Lena Webb Catoe, seventeen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Catoe, of Webb, became the bride of Mr. Perry, of Grenada. Miss Catoe was attending the Grenada College and a college romance culminated unexpectedly in the wedding, which, as both families of the contracting parties state, is most ideal except for the youth of both Miss Catoe and Mr. Perry, who is approaching his 21st birthday. However, as we all know, many an ideal match has been made between persons of more tender years than this happy couple must confess, especially in the good old days when it was fashionable to marry young. The bride is a favorite niece of Mrs. Hughes Sample, of this city.—Social Items, Clarksdalian, April 25.

THE FARM AND THE CITY

Prosperity is the result of balanced industry.

The industry of South Mississippi is largely that of lumber manufacturing.

Sixty-five per cent of every business activity in South Mississippi depends largely upon sawmills. Nearly sixty-five per cent of our buying power flows from it.

Students of economics are constantly emphasizing the necessity for equilibrium in industry as the fundamental condition of prosperity.

With the certain passing out of our sawmills, our chief industry will be lost to us; to the same extent will our buying power and taxable wealth decline, unless we adopt measures of avoidance.

It is unthinkable for any one of us to live in a narrow little world of routine and humdrum, knowing only the small affairs and thinking only the same thoughts, when we are in an age of miracles greater than any of ancient story and the whole earth and sky and sea are filled with wonders which are being revealed to us day by day. As we read of them the mind and the soul must expand and grow greater and nobler to take them in.

The matchless wonder of all—the GREATEST SOURCE of our wealth IS THE SOIL.

Our high ideals, strength of character and independence come from it.

How little do we of the cities realize that the safety of all we have depends upon our agricultural prosperity. Do we realize that the out of every one hundred dollars spent to maintain our State institutions, sixty-nine to seventy-five dollars of it comes from agriculture?

What is our contract with the man upon the farm?

What have we done and what are we doing to help him solve his problems?

There is quite a difference between paternalism and the commonsense discussion or treatment of a problem.

No decent self-respecting man wants something for nothing.

The man in town and the man on the farm are the vital and necessary factors of our economic progress.

Our trouble has been that we do not know each other.

The Development Board of this city is doing its utmost to inaugurate "get-together" meetings of farmers and business men as these meetings have invariably resulted in removing misunderstanding between the folks in town and those on the farm, to say nothing of the great help such meetings offer the farmer in building a market for his surplus.

How much better it would be for Hattiesburg and Forrest county, and for Mississippi as a whole, if there existed between the man in town and the man on the farm a friendly understanding of each other's problems and a manifestation of comradeship sympathy that would find expression in a hearty hand-clasp on a "John" and "Henry" basis.

Just as sure as every new farm in Forrest county will add to Hattiesburg's skyline, it is equally as certain that every acre in stumps will hold it down.

Join the Development Board and get acquainted with the folks on the farm—it will help us all.

"There is a gift of God
In the furrowed sod,
If labor's share ye do;
For the sod ye sow
Shall be multiplied
By the sunshine, rain and dew,
And for the sweat and toil
That ye give the soil,
Tenfold shall return.

—Hattiesburg American

THE PERSONNEL OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

A number of people have recently written to The Commercial Appeal, making inquiries as to the religion and racial slants of the news associations and newspapers. Most of these letters are probably inspired by Ku Klux propaganda, which asserts that the Associated Press is controlled by Catholics, that Rome has its hand at the throat of most every American paper through ownership, and that what Rome hasn't got, the Jews are getting. All this is what Bernard Shaw calls hokum.

The Associated Press is a co-operative association, whose directors are elected by the member papers. The directors in turn elect officers and a general manager.

serves papers of all political beliefs and non-sectarian because it is a lay organization whose business is the accurate dissemination of news. The news is gathered from its various members and by its own correspondents.

It would not make any difference if the directors of the Associated Press all belonged to one church or to no church, but it happens that all of its directors, 14 in number, are non-Catholics. Of the 14, one is a Jew, the rest are distributed just about like any other similar group of Americans would be.

Melville E. Stone, for a long time general manager of the Associated Press, is a son of a Methodist minister, and is a member of that denomination. Frederick Roy Martin, the present general manager, Mr. Stone being counsellor, is a member of an old New England Puritan family. Some time ago it was urged that because his name is McCall, that the superintendent of the Southern Division, with headquarters in Atlanta, was in league with the pope. Mr. McCall is a Baptist. He is also one of the most efficient superintendents the Southern Division ever had.

The directors and officers of the Associated Press are high minded American citizens, and faithful to the Constitution.

The Associated Press in taking men into its service, gives no heed to what they believe or do not believe as to politics or religion, but it does insist that they be men of character.

Anyone desiring any further detail about the Associated Press can be accommodated if that one would write to Mr. Frederick Roy Martin, 51 Chambers Street, New York City. Mr. Martin would probably answer even if the questions are absurd.—Commercial Appeal.

NO "SISSY" CAMPAIGNING

No "sissy" campaigning is needed now in Mississippi. Let's get behind a man for Governor who has convictions and who is willing to take the people into his confidence to tell them what he believes and what he will try to do, should he be elected.—Grenada Sentinel.

The kind of a man Mississippi wants for Governor is a man who has nothing to hide and wouldn't do it if he had. A man who has nothing to be ashamed of and who can come out in the open and invite inspection. There are men of that kind who are offering their services to the people.—Clarion Ledger.

Yes, there are several men running for Governor whose lives measure high in the moral standards and who stand for the best in church and in state in their communities. But we need more than that. We need a man who knows how to execute the job of being Governor, and who has the backbone to meet the stormy conditions that too often surround the Governor's office. There are lots of clean men in Mississippi, men who have "have nothing to hide" and "who can come out in the open and invite inspection." Surely Mississippi is not reduced to the men who are running for Governor to find men with clean moral records. That is one of the tests, but there is something more needed in a Governor and we have what is needed in addition to morality and the proper observance of religious standards in the race.

HARRISON ON HARDING AND HIS FATHER

Pat Harrison's "every Sunday" in Commercial Appeal last Sunday in which he referred to the personal traits of President Harding and his meeting the "boys in gray" when they were in Washington last year, and the attendance of the President's father at the Confederate Reunion in New Orleans, showed a fine spirit and showed that our Senior Senator has a breadth of vision and a Christian spirit which makes him look beyond party lines and see the good in the men who are just as honest and just as sincere as we are in what they contend for politically.

President Harding's kindness of heart and his proneness to place himself on the level with his fellows is his greatest element of strength, and a trait markedly wanting in some much bigger and greater men.

We commend Senator Harrison for what he said. We commend him for paying tribute where tribute is due.

INCOME TAXES

On an income of $10,000 a year, the income tax is $456 in our country, $478 in Canada, $416 in France, $1128 in Great Britain and $701 in Germany.

On income of $100,000 a year, the tax in Britain is $43,450 while the four other countries average about $30,000 and none of them very far from the average.

Britain is putting the screws on tighter than the rest of us. Naturally, she'll reduce her national debt at a faster rate.—N. O. States.

They say Russell hates Theodore like the devil does holy water. Yet there are some who believe that Russell agreed to pay Bilbo if he would not go to the trial and that one of the considerations was that Bilbo's man, Williamson, superintendent of the penitentiary, was not to be turned out of his job. Williamson's successor was due to be appointed last December, but it was not done and Williamson is still on the job.

It is stated that Mistinguett, the Parisian dancer, has had her legs insured for one million dollars. This dancer is press agent as having the most perfect legs in the world.

CONNER'S RECORD

ON WAR CLEAR

above draft age, but within volunteer age, and who could have gone but did not go because they were not called. Exemptions and deferred classifications were not made for the benefit of individuals, but for the welfare of the nation, and it was a man's duty to accept his classification, whatever it was, and that is why Mississippians did so. I was able to go, I was willing to go, I offered to go, and I would have gone except that the President, Congress, and the Adjutant General of Mississippi thought it best that I remain at my post of duty.

"I have kept silent thus far, because these charges were not made publicly, or in my presence. My patriotism, like my religion, is sacred and I never boast of either. This whole issue was fought out in 1919 when I defeated a returned soldier of ability, carrying all precincts except his home boxes, in my race for the Legislature, and when the fight was renewed in the Legislature I was re-elected Speaker by the unanimous vote of the House. To a fair-minded person this would appear to settle the matter.

"There are no war heroes in this race. According to my information, all the candidates were within volunteer age. Some within draft age, and three were within the ages of twenty and thirty, as I am advised, when the Spanish-American war was fought—a war in which the Government called for volunteers and each man determined the part he would play. Whereas, in the World War the Government fixed each man's responsibility for him, and said it was his duty to act accordingly.

"I make this statement for the information of my friends and those who honestly want the record, realizing that I will not satisfy my political enemies. I hope the newspapers, in a spirit of fair play, will carry this answer to the people who were not here tonight. I appeal to our citizens to require records and not to accept political rumors concerning the candidacy of any candidate for Governor, or any other office."

Mr. Conner was introduced by Fred Montgomery, Commander of the Local Post of the American Legion, and his statement called forth prolonged applause because of the clear cut, straight forward manner in which Mr. Conner tackled the question.

now for half a mile waterwards the U. S. Government has pumped sand out to make deepness for big boat loading, then a big rock wall was put up for some several miles and the sand formed land. Now all along this wall on the new made land the Standard Oil Co., Union Oil Co., Associated Oil Co., Petroleum Oil Co., and several others have tanks as big as a circus ring and some 50 feet high, all stored with oil for the poor people across the big pond. On an average there will arrive and leave this port from 16 to 20 big iron vessels which carry oil. You can stand on my front or back porch gallery and see them coming and going all the time. From our house to the water is about as far as from your house to the post office. But I started telling you about the Boulevard, you come on around the hills and when about ¼ mile of the edge of San Pedro business section you come to a winding hill which is so steep as to make it necessary for this part of it to be paved with rough brick so as to give the cars a toe hold. When you get to the top the ground is level and you are some 200 feet up. The Boulevard runs straight to the south end of the town which is 6 or 7 miles and all the streets run into this big one and the property on it is now selling for $200 and up per front foot.

We want to build a double apartment on back end of our lot, but can't get a contractor to figure on it, they are too busy. One young man was here yesterday and said he was building 4 large store buildings and half dozen flats but he would come and figure with me in the next week or two.

You ask if our "good roads run right up in town." I don't know what you mean by "Good Roads." I suppose you mean paved roads. Well if you started to make an auto trip over California you need never get off of a paved road, as every section of it is paved and crossed paved and even the large farms have a main paved road running through it, and this is a private road for farm use only.

Only last week I went with a friend down to San Bernadino in an auto. The trip covered about 200 miles and we went through all manners of country but we never were off of a paved road.

I know you red necks way back in the woods where you exist don't believe a word we say about California therefore you don't believe what I say about the roads. So when you come out here and see for yourself you had better just keep your mouth shut when you get back among the other dear old moss backs or they might turn you out of the church for lying.

When you see the dear Papa give him our love. I would like to see him again and perhaps we ("The Boss" and I) may return with your folks this fall. We don't have to stay here all the time as our business goes on just the same when we are away. Renters pay in advance and the Bank sees that they do. Before you all come I will send you listing of best route. Come one way and return another.

Love to all the people of Grenada including "old man" Lawrence.

We are well,

Cousin W.

If Mrs. A. R. Dockery will call at the box office at Grenada Opera House, she will be given a ticket good for admission to "Driven" to be shown Thursday and Friday, May 17 and 18, with an all-star cast.

MEETING OF MT. NEBO COMMUNITY CLUB

The Mt. Nebo Community Club met May 3 with Mrs. A. F. Clark as hostess. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Frank Anderson, the president, and the minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. A. A. Henson. About forty members responded to the roll call. After the preliminaries had been disposed of, the following subjects were discussed by the members: Paper Exercises for Chicks, Best Home Grown Feeds for the Community, Round Table Discussion led by Mrs. Lee Clark. Mr. E. H. White, County Agent, made an interesting talk on "The Proper Grain to Sow for Winter Feed."

It was then decided to have an ice cream supper at the club rooms for the next meeting. Miss Kibler entertained the club girls. Miss Kate Lea, the Home Economics Agent, then showed the members how to cull hens. The next meeting of the club is to be held at the club rooms on Thursday, June 7. XXX

MRS. PLUNKET SAYS SHE IS NOW WELL AND HAPPY

Well Known Little Rock Resident gives Interesting Account of her Restoration to Health through the Use of Stella Vitae Treatment.

"After suffering for several months with one of the worst cases of female troubles any woman was ever afflicted with. I am now well and happy through the use of Stella Vitae," recently said Mrs. Marie Plunkett, of 4418 W. 11th St., Little Rock, Ark.

"I had been irregular in my periods for I don't know how long, and this condition kept me in a constant state of worry and apprehension. Really, I was afraid I was going to have a breakdown and maybe be a sick woman for the rest of my days.

"My back ached and pained me like it would break in two, and I suffered from an awful misery in my side that never seemed to let up, after I had exerted myself by doing any little thing about the house.

"I would get very nervous, too, at times and even the noises in the street or loud talking would excite me and start me to trembling, and I would jump like I was shot at the closing of the door or any sudden noise.

"I have taken many different kinds of medicines in my time but have never found one to equal Stella Vitae in relieving any sort of Female trouble. Why, I have only taken three bottles of this wonderful remedy and I am just feeling fine with nothing to bother me at all.

When it is realized that thousands of women everywhere suffer terribly day after day and year after year from ills that are peculiar to their sex, the far-reaching benefits of Stella Vitae to humanity can be readily appreciated.

How plain are the symptoms: Backache, headache, loss of appetite, nervousness and withal, the feeling that life is not worth living. And what a series of weaknesses and diseases follow these symptoms. Troubles that make of the normally healthy, active woman a miserable, weak, dejected sufferer pitied by others and herself on the verge of despair. It is for such women as Mrs. Plunkett, quoted above, that Stella Vitae proves to be the long-sought boon insuring them health and happiness beyond measure.

Note—Stella Vitae may be obtained from any druggist and is sold under the positive guarantee that the purchase price will be refunded if it fails to bring relief. Druggists are supplied from the Van Vleet Manufacturing Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.

PRESSGROVE

Contracts Bad Case Of COMMERCIAL COLIC

It seems this disease is becoming quite common among merchants all over the country. Experts have used their best efforts to battle the disease successfully. All kinds of remedies have seemingly failed to stop the malady. The disease seems to be contagious—does not discriminate as to locality. Has no respect of persons. The bigger the commercial concern may be more severe these colic pains seem to be. Rice Pressgrove says he thinks he caught it in Memphis last fall. Rice says the pains are just awful that he had been suffering for weeks. Said he made up his mind to send for an expert on commercial diseases. He came, and the very first thing he said on his arrival was for me to unload the stomach of our beautiful store. He said to close your doors quick. To save me, I couldn't see how the closing of doors would ease pain, but listen readers, Dock Says, Mr. Pressgrove, do you know that nine merchants, yes, even FARMERS, DOCTORS, MECHANICS, SCHOOL TEACHERS, HORSE TRADERS, AUTOMOBILE DEALERS, BANKERS, LAWYERS, now listen "Mr. Pressgrove, I say nine out of ten are suffering with the disease. They all need a tonic. In your case, your only salvation is to UNLOAD THE STOMACH OF YOUR STORE. Go down in your basement, have Frank Yorke to mark down everything in his stock. Put all your force at work on the SECOND floor. Have them to cut down the prices from START TO FINISH. Don't let a THING escape. Now listen, Mr. Pressgrove, your THIRD floor amazes me. In the name of common sense, why did you fill the stomach of this department so full? Never in my practice have I struck a similar case. You must have a THOUSAND trimmed hats, probably a THOUSAND ready-to-wear garments, you probably have 500 skirts and not less than a MILLION other things. Now get busy and mark down your prices. Of course you can't quote all your prices, for Mr. Lawrence's good paper is not big enough to hold all your prices. THE THING TO DO Mr. Pressgrove is to unload the STOMACHS of all your THREE departments if you expect to recover from this malady, that's sweeping the entire country. I must go Mr. Pressgrove, I have other patients to see. "Good Bye, let me hear from you," "all right Doc k, I'm going to do as you say."

Now Listen, Readers, We are Going to Unload, Just as Dock Says Do.

"MOTHER'S DAY AT ALL SAINTS' CHURCH"

Sunday being Mother's Day, an appropriate discourse to "Our Mothers" will be preached by the rector at the eleven o'clock morning service. The church will be a bower of red and white roses.

Members and visitors are urged to wear a red or white rose, as a reminder of her we love who is either in the land of the living, or in the arms of our Heavenly Father. We will have two of our young girls at the door to supply those who are unable to obtain theirs, so that all will be appropriately flowered. Every one is welcome to this service and we hope that every seat will be occupied. Come and bring your friends.

"See here, Molly," Sandy leaned forward in his chair, talking earnestly. "You've got the makin' of a mighty fine woman in you. An' paht of you is yore dad an' paht yore maw. Sabe? They handed you on down an', if you make the most of yosef, you make the most of them. Me, I've allus been troubled with the saddle-titch an' I've wanted the out-of-doors. So you see I lost out on a heap," said Sandy. "An' I'm a man. I can get erlong with less. But fo' a gel, learnin' a grand thing. An' there's the big cities, an' theaters, fine clothes an' fine manners. Like livin' in another world."

"But," said Molly, wide-eyed, "that's the life I like. I mean out here. I don't want to be different."

"I ain't refined, I reckon," said Molly with a sigh. "I don't know as I want to be. I can allus come back, can't I?"

"You sure can." "An' there's Dad. He's where he wanted to be. I wudn't want to go away from him."

"He'd want you to make this trip, sure," said Sandy. "An' that settles it. You go off to bed an' dream on it. Sam, I'm goin' to soak that place on yore arm with iodine. Good night, Molly."

She got up immediately, went to Mormon and to Sam and gravely shook hands, thanking them.

"You-all are d-d good to me," she said. Opposite Sandy she hesitated, then threw her arms round his neck and kissed him before she ran from the room, with Grit leaping after her. Sandy's bronzed face glowed like reflecting copper.

CHAPTER VI

Paso Cabras.

They did not make butter on the Three Star. Since the arrival of Molly an unwilling and refractory cow had been brought in from the range and half forced, half coaxed to give the fresh milk that Mormon insisted the girl needed. Until then evaporated milk had suited all hands. But butter—to go with hot cakes and sage-honey—was an imperative need for the riders. The butter came over weekly from the Bailey ranch to be kept under the spring cover for cooling. Usually the gangling young Ed Bailey brought it over in the crochety flivver. When Sandy saw the sparsely fleshed figure of Miranda Bailey seated by the driver he winced in spirit. This second visitation looked like mere curiosity and gossip and offset the opinion he had begun to form of the spinster—that she was sound underneath her angularities and mannerisms.

It was twilight. The three partners and Molly were on the ranch-house porch after supper, and there was no escape. Miranda nodded at the three partners, who rose as she came up the steps.

"You sure need some new clothes, child," she said to Molly. "You got to have 'em. Now then, I come on business. Sandy Bourke, you ain't any of you the legal guardian of that child, air you?"

"Nothin' illegal in what we're doin', I reckon."

"I didn't ask you that. You-all ain't got papers?"

"Jest what's the idea?" Sandy asked. "Someone figgerin' on makin' her stay at the Three Star unpleasant? Fur as jest gossip is concerned, it don't have any weight with none of us an' there ain't no sense in mentionin' it."

"Pears you ain't givin' me over an' above credit for sense," said Miranda, a bit grimly. "This ain't gossip. Here 'tis. I got it direct from my brother, who's heard the talk goin' round. You've run foul of Jim Plimsoll—or he foul of you, which is more likely. Plimsoll an' Eke Jordan, the sheriff, are like two peas in a pod. Now for the meat of the nut. They're figgerin' on gettin' control of the gel away from you-all. They'll use arguments for the general public that she's too young to be keepin' house for three unmarried men, leastwise three men who ain't livin' with their wives." She looked pointedly at Mormon. "They'll rouse up opinion enough for a change. They'd like to appint a guardian of their own kidney. Mebbe we can block that if one of us comes out an' offers to take her. I'd be glad to, for one, an' do the right thing by her."

Molly walked over to Sandy's chair and stood behind it, her eyes widening, her breath beginning to come quickly.

"There's some talk about her father's claims over to Dynamite lookin' up. Party of easterners over that way lately, nosin' around to find out owners, lookin' up assessment work an' so on. Talk of a boom. I reckon Plimsoll's twigg'd that. Lawyer Feeder, who run for state senator an' whose record's none too dainty, is in cahoots with Jordan an' Plimsoll. Ed heard they figger on goin' before Judge Vanniman, one of their crowd, to get an order of court. She's a minor. They can git her away from you. If we crowd them too hard for them to appint one of their own ring—an' they're figgerin' on Plimsoll, he claimin' to be her father's partner—they'll likely have her put in some institution. An' it's goin' to be done right sudden."

Molly stepped out, eyes flashing, fists clenched, talking passionately. "I won't go with 'em. I'll run away. They can't take me. Jim Plimsoll is a d-d liar. You won't let 'em take me!" She turned to Sandy, her arms stretched in appeal.

"No, Molly, I won't. Will we, boys?" "You can bet everything you got an' ever hope to own we won't," said Sam. "That goes for me," echoed Mormon, but he scratched his fringe of hair in some perplexity.

"Talk don't beat an order of the court," said Miranda Bailey. "Mebbe I seem sort of vinegary to you, child, but I'm not a bad sort. I figger if you came home with me today we'd hanage to git you placed with us. There's been tattle about you stoppin' here. You're fifteen—an' . . ."

"Some folks is jest plumb rotten," flared Molly. "I'm no kid. I . . . oh, if Dad was alive!"

Sandy stood up and slid an arm about her shaking shoulders. She wheeled and buried her head on his shoulder, sobbing.

"We're powerful obliged to you, Miss Bailey, for what you told us," said Sandy. "I'm right sure you'd give Molly a fine home, but we got other plans an' we aim to carry 'em out. Plimsoll's a skunk an' I'll block his game about the mines of they amount to anything. Molly's goin' east for her education. She's got plenty money to git the best that's goin' an' she's goin' to have it."

"Then you better git her 'cross the county line before many hours are over," Miss Bailey climbed into the machine. "You aim on takin' her out of the county to the railroad tomorrow?" she asked. "What school is she goin' to?"

"We ain't settled all the details," said Sandy. "But we'll do that all right. We'll git ready soon's we can. Meantime, we'll keep our eyes peeled tomorrow against any order from Hereford?"

Miranda waved a farewell as she called out, "Good luck!"

"Some sport!" announced Sam. "That's the kind of woman you shud have married, Mormon."

Molly, excited now, demanded audience.

"When do we start?" she asked eagerly. "Will you wait till they come out from Hereford?"

"I got to think out things a bit, Molly," said Sandy. "One thing is sure, you got to tuh in an' git a good rest. Ef we slide out it won't be all a pleasure trip. I reckon Plimsoll means business. An' he's sure got the county machinery behind him right now."

"I can take Grit?"

"Wudn't want to leave us somethin' to remember you by?" asked Sandy. "Somethin' to help make sure you'll come back?"

Molly regarded Sandy soberly, her fingers twining through the dog's mane.

"You'd be good to him—same as you air to me? Oh, I'm just plumb mean to ask you that. I know you wud. He's goin' to be jest as lone-some as me for a bit, ain't you, Grit? He allus slep' with me, cuddlin' up, an'—"

"Good night," she said. "Come, Grit."

The three men sat silent for a moment or two after she left.

"She's sure a stem-winder," said Mormon presently. "How you goin' to fix to get her away, Sandy?"

"I got a plan warmin' up," said Sandy. "Nearest to the county line is west through the Cabezas range. I aim to git to the railroad an' then me an' Molly'll make for New Mexico."

"Huh?"

"You guessed it, Mormon. For the Pecos river an' Boville an' the Redding ranch. I reckon Barbara Redding'll handle the thing. She'll git Molly her outfit an' she'll know all about the right schools."

Mormon brought his hand down on Sam's thigh with a sounding whack.

"Dern me, ef he ain't the wise ol' son of a gun," he cried delightedly. "Sure!"

Barbara Redding, once Barbara Barton of the celebrated Curly O, was a bright star in the mutual firmament of the Three Star partners. They had all worked together on the Curly O in the old days. Sandy had been foreman there. Once he had rescued Barbara Barton from horse rustlers with a grudge against her father, and once again he had rendered her even greater service when members of the same crowd kidnaped her two-year-old son, whom Barbara Redding had brought on a visit to his grandfather. Sandy had trailed alone and brought in the "l'il son of a gun," as he styled the youngster. There was little that Barbara Redding and her husband, wealthy rancher, would not do for Sandy.

"I've got an itch to give Plimsoll an' his pals a run fo' their money," went on Sandy. "An' here's the way I figger to do it. In the rough. See what you all think of it."

Subdued guffaws rose from the porch in through the open window of the room where Molly Casey lay wide awake, the dog beside her. Presently she heard the martial strains of Sam's harmonica, cuddled under his big mustache, played one-handed.

"They're good," she said to Grit. "An' they've figgered out something or they wudn't be actin' thataway. You an' me got to be game."

Next morning, breakfast over before the sun was well above the peaks, while desert birds were still rising, twittering shrill welcome to the dawn, Sandy went about humming snatches of cowboy songs just above his breath as he oversaw the arrangements for the exodus that was to be, not so much a flight as a deliberately calculated laying of a trail for the pursuit. He was in high humor as the buckboard was greased, a team of buckskins given a special feed and a rub-down, and various articles gathered for transportation. Among these were a spool of barbed wire and a dozen fence posts.

His spirit was infectious. Four riders, jumping to his orders, tossed badinage among one another like a ball. Mormon and Sam, seated on the top rail of the corral fence, openly admired their partner.

"Like old times, Mormon?" suggested Sam.

"Sure is. I reckon we'll have some fun fore the day's out. Got yore gun oiled up? Here's Molly."

Molly came out on the porch carrying a small grip packed with her few belongings. Grit beside her. Sandy nodded to her, busy giving instructions to two riders. Mormon and Sam waved and she went over to them, swinging up to the rail beside them.

"Jim," said Sandy, "I want you should ride out to 'ards Hereford an' hide out atop of Bald butte. You don't need to stay there any later than noon. Take a flash-glass with you. If any of the sheriff's crowd comes erlong, anyone who looks like he might be servin' papers, sabe, you flash a message. Make it a five-flash fo' anything suspicious, a three-flash fo' anyone shackin' this way, even if you figger they're plumb harmless."

"Seguro, Miguel." With the slang phrase, Jim, an upstanding young chap, despite his horse-bowed legs, walked over to the bunk house for flash-mirror and gun, came back to his already caught-up and saddled horse, and vent streaming off for the Bald butte in a cloud of dust. Sandy called to Buck Perches, oldest of his riders, whose exposed skin matched the leather of his saddle.

"Buck, ef any visitors arrives while we're gone, you entertain 'em same as I wud. I wudn't be surprised but what Jim Plimsoll 'ud be moseyin' erlong, with Sheriff Jordan an' mebbe one or two mo'. Mo' the merrier. They'll be lookin' fo' me an' Miss Molly with some readin' matter that's got a seal to the bottom of it. We won't be to home. You'll be the only one to home 'cept Pedro an' Joe. They've got their instructions to know nothin'. You—you've stayed to the ranch to do some fixin' of yore saddle. Started, but come back when yore cinch busted. Sabe? All the rest of the riders is on the range 'tendin' business. When they left, an' when you left with 'em, me an' Mormon an' Sam, with Miss Molly, was all here. So you supposed. Don't let 'em think you're planted to feed 'em information. Up to you, Buck, to act natcherul."

"I'll sure do that. I sabe the play." "Then we'll light out soon's we're packed. Got yore war-bag, Molly?"

"I haven't said good-by to Dad, or Grit," she said.

Sandy nodded. "Reckon you'd like to do that alone. Suppose you take Grit with you to the spring an' then leave him up in yore room."

"He knows I'm goin'." I told him last night, but he knew it 'bout that." Molly spoke in a monotone. She was pale and her eyes showed lack of sleep, but she had fought the thing out with herself and she was going to be game. She gave Sandy her grip and walked off toward the cottonwoods. Grit nosed along in her shadow, his muzzle touching her skirt.

It was still cool, the dust rose about them in eddies as the three Musketeers and Molly crossed the slowly descending slope of the sink that presently mounted again toward the far-off range.

Either Mormon or Sam sat always with neck twisted, watching for a flash-signal from the butte. Sometimes Molly relieved them as lookout, but hour after hour passed without sign.

But Hour After Hour Passed Without Sign.

Close to noon they reached a watering hole, with water none too cool or sweet, but still welcome. There the buckskins were unlatched, rubbed down and, after they had cooled off, given water and grain. As they ate cactus, Sandy suddenly gave a grunt of satisfaction, pointing with outstretched forefinger to the butte. Five flashes had flickered up. They were repeated. Jim had signaled a suspicious party on their way to Three Star. The sheriff was out with his papers.

"We got five hours' stah't," said Sandy. "Made close to thirty mile. They've got thirty-five to make. Take 'em mo'n two hours, countin' questions with Buck. Good enough. See anything of the boys, Sam? They ought to be showin' up. I told 'em nogn."

"On time," announced Sam. The two riders who had last talked with Sandy rode out of a straggling thicket of cactus and skirted the lava flow. Each led a spare horse, unsaddled.

UNION LABEL

The political cowardice of the average aspirant for office is strikingly shown by the manner in which candidates in this state are being bluffed and bulldozed by union labor organizations into having all their campaign literature bear the union label.

It is all right, of course, if a candidate desires to show preference for the union label, providing the price for the work he desires is no higher than that charged by other printing concerns, but—

The candidate who imagines that he is going to capture the union labor vote simply because his printing bears the union label is laboring under a silly delusion.

The plain truth of the matter is that union labor is not a factor in political affairs in this state, nor is the printing industry in this state dominated by unionism.

Quite to the contrary, the candidate who accords patronage exclusively to union shops is doing a grave injustice to the country printer, and putting the union label—which is merely a badge of servitude—on his printing is more likely to prove a vote-loser rather than a vote-getter.

There are 131 country newspapers and printing establishments in Mississippi that do not use the union label, and only nine that use the union label.

From this it would appear that the effort of labor organizations to dominate the placing of printing contracts by candidates is a very conspicuous case of the tail wagging the dog.

The Daily News is in no way personally concerned in this matter, as we do not operate a job printing shop, but being fairly conversant with the printing industry in this state, we have no hesitancy in saying that the candidate who allows himself to be thus dominated is going to find mighty little favor among the weekly newspapers and job printing establishments of Mississippi, and they exert an influence far greater than this little group of print shops who have not had the courage to tell the International Typographical Union where to get off.

Putting it in the very plainest English, the editors and publishers of the weekly newspapers and job printers of Mississippi are up in arms against what is nothing more or less than a boycott being perpetrated upon them, all because of the cowardice of candidates, and it is safe to predict that they will manifest their resentment in a very definite way.

The International Typographical Union could not muster 500 votes in Mississippi to save itself from perdition. As a matter of fact, not exceeding half its members are qualified voters, for its members represent a floating class of population. They drift from place to place, rarely staying in any community long enough to qualify for suffrage, whereas the home printer who does not carry a union card, who works in the job plants and country print shop, is a citizen of the permanent type, who buys or builds a home, rears a family, and becomes a useful factor in the community.

The union printers work chiefly in the smaller shops of the cities of this state. They do not dominate any of the large printing industries, and their strength and influence is growing less with each passing year.

It is high time for the candidates to show that they possess a little more backbone than a skinned banana by telling this little group of political bulldozers that they do not consider the union label an asset of political value.—Jackson Daily News.

THE "UNION" HAS FORCED THE ISSUE

The Allied Trades Council of Jackson recently published a list of six printing offices in the State which are recommended to candidates for office as empowered to print the union label on campaign literature, with the implied threat that any candidate whose literature fails to carry this label will forfeit union labor support. The Employing Printers Association of the State has countered with the publication of a list of 131 printing establishments in the state which operate under the "American Plan" of open shop, and asks the candidates the very pertinent question: "Of which group would you rather have the support? No such issue should have been made, but since the Unions have undertaken to coerce the candidates, the open shop printers should meet the issue squarely and see who's who.—Fayette Chronicle.

Labor unions are all right in their place, but when the members of such an organization feel called upon to dictate to candidates as to where to have work done, it appears to us that they are getting just a bit too dictatorial. Since the matter just referred to has been brought into public notice by the Allied Trades Council of Jackson, we feel that there is nothing left for the "open printing shops" but to accept the challenge in order to see "who's who."

The first article above, as will be seen, is taken from the Fayette Chronicle. The second is from the Woodville Republican.

For a number of years the "Union" has been holding a club over the heads of candidates with the veiled, and sometimes open, threat, that it would knife any candidate which sent out any campaign literature that did not bear the Union label. Only recently the Union came out in print and made bold to declare its purpose in this State campaign where campaign matter did not bear

Union label.

We are constrained to believe that the rank and file of the Union did not endorse this action. "Leaders" and would be leaders do many rash things that oftentimes throw hardships and burdens on the privates.

We have not now nor have we ever had any disposition to antagonize or decry the organization of labor. On the other hand we have always held that it should organize and there can be no doubt that had labor not organized, the heels of greed would have been upon the necks of those who must toil. Capital is organized, so should labor be.

But there is no need for labor to strike at anything that does not see fit to become one of its members. In doing so, it many times strikes a blow at good friends.

In the case in Mississippi, it is the mountain going to the mouse. There are more printers outside of the Union in Mississippi than there is in.

Furthermore, the total organized labor vote, if it could be polled in a body, of the entire State will not total 10,000 votes.

But this is a matter for the printers and country newspapers. Why should the non-union job offices and the country press, which outnumber the Union shops 10 to 1, bow to the mandates of the union? The Union label on the campaign matter of any candidate should not discredit that candidate with the general voting public; likewise the label of the Mississippi Employing Association on the campaign matter of any candidate should not discredit that candidate. Let's have a square deal for all. This is a free country.

WHAT WILL THE RESULT BE?

It is an interesting study just now to watch the tendency of the times from a business viewpoint. We do not spring this subject with any rope that anything we might say will have a tendency to change the present ways of people. There is but one thing that will do that, and no man is smart enough to say just when that hour will strike. But all thinking people know it is coming, and all admit that they know it.

Our Government continues to make it easy for the agricultural people—the foundation of it all—to borrow money, with unheeded restrictions: It appears to us that if our government would spend more time and money in devising a plan, or plans, of better distribution of the farmers' products, that he might get more for his labor, instead of loaning him so much money, we might hope for better times in the future. But so long as it makes credit easy for the farmer, and allows the manufacturer protection, and the middle men feast as they do, the country can never be soundly prosperous.

There is too small a per cent of our people, farmers and others for that matter, capable of handling successfully, for them to borrow much money and be prosperous very long.

As we see it, the government is selling millions of dollars worth of government bonds to bond buyers, who are the manufacturers largely, for money to lend the farmers to buy the manufacturers' wares, which at this time are greatly unproductive wares; the farmer soaking his land ostensibly to our government, but in reality to the bond buyers, for this money. Hence, it looks like it is only a roundabout way the bond buyers and manufacturers have of getting in possession of the lands of the nation, or its equivalent—the only real commodity the credit of the nation is based upon.

So, it is a wheel within a wheel, so to speak, and what will eventually be the result is forecasted in several Federal Farm Loan trustee's sales now running in this paper, with more to follow. No, we are not a pessimist, but a man who says he is not afraid of a cyclone is a fool.—Winston County Journal.

Gentlemen:

I have written a lengthy opinion in this cause, but it is necessary on account of the illness of the court stenographer that I simply advise the solicitors engaged in the case of my conclusion.

After reading Chapter 195, Laws of 1912 and the amendments thereto, and the construction placed by the Supreme Court on all of our drainage acts, and especially Cox vs Wallace and Pegram vs Owl Creek Drainage District, I am firmly persuaded that the Chancery Court or Chancellor sitting as a drainage court has no superior authority, but is on equal footing as a court with the Board of Supervisors, the only distinction within the county, while the Chancellor has jurisdiction of two or more counties. I think it was the intention and scheme of the Legislature to make the remedy of mandamus exclusive in handling these matters.

The petition was dismissed in this case by the Supreme Court and the order of the Chancellor certifying the taxes to the several counties, in my judgment, can only be enforced, if at all, by a mandamus proceeding against the several Boards of Supervisors.

These Boards of Supervisors are courts of record with limited jurisdiction, while the Chancery Court sitting as a drainage court is a quasi court of record but each have the same functions with the exception of limitations as to territory. I am therefore of the opinion that as Chancellor it is my duty to discharge the defendants, the several Boards of Supervisors herein, from the rule for contempt, and a decree will be submitted discharging the defendants in the contempt proceedings for want of jurisdiction in this court to punish for contempt.

citizens of the town who most generously provided the dinner for the club members and their visitors, also to the Grenada County Woman's Club, especially Mrs. J. T. Keeton, Mrs. C. C. Penn, Mrs. Neal Carothers, Mrs. Proudfoot, and Miss Broadstreet, who so graciously prepared and served the meal.

The hen sale, Mr. R. N. Perry auctioneer, netted a nice little sum of money that will be used to defray the expense of the club camp that is to be held later in the summer.

One of the treats of the day was the picture show. This was made possible by the cooperative spirit of the hustling young manager of the show, Mr. Williams.

There is no doubt but that great good comes from these get-together meetings of the young citizens of the county. It promotes a more friendly feeling and a mutual understanding in the development work which these youngsters are undertaking. These meetings deserve the friendly cooperation of all the citizens of the county. Another similar meeting will be held later on in the summer in the form of a club camp. All that can be asked is the same friendly attitude as was manifested at this meeting.

THE ACHIEVEMENTS OF SCIENCE

Invention Sees Your Inwards and Very Nearly Reads Thoughts

The writer has seen many X-Ray machines but he never had the opportunity to examine one of these wonderful machines so minutely as the one recently installed in the offices of Drs. Sharp and Clanton.

There can be seen the picture of a stone in a man's kidney; there can be seen the picture of a tubercular lung; there can be seen the picture of a man who has pus in the bone behind the ear; there can be seen the picture of a man with a diseased limb—these and numerous other pictures are all subjects taken in Grenada territory. It is a wonderful machine. The X-Ray machine's contribution to the medical world and as an aid in determining the ailments of man are beyond the power of the human mind, certainly the lay mind, to estimate.

Many a human being has suffered from disease; he has lingered for years on the bed of affliction for the reason that his anxious and patient and learned doctor could not see inside of him and locate exactly what the trouble was. The X-Ray machine sends the eyes of the doctor on the inside; it gives the eye and the skill of the doctor a chance at one's inwards; it turns one, so to speak, inside out. It is such a marvel, when considered in connection with the radio and other inventions, that one almost shudders lest his thoughts be read aloud and he might not want that done.

The machine in these offices is the largest and seemingly the most perfect the writer ever saw and it will no doubt prove a benediction to the patients of these Doctors as well as to the sick in general.

The medical world has made wonderful strides. There is no profession that tries harder to go from the success of today to a greater success tomorrow than the medical world. It is made up of great men of great hearts, and a very large per cent of them are just doctors because they love the work and because it does their very souls good to alleviate the sufferings of their fellow beings.
